FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Los Alamitos, California, Aug 29, 2005 Epoch International (“Epoch”), a California-based engineering and manufacturing service company today announced its successful acquisition of Pacific Trinetics Corp (PTC) assets, a leading equipment manufacturer for ceramic microelectronic devices.

Commenting on the acquisition, the Chief Executive Officer of Epoch, Foad Ghalili said: “We are going beyond mere diversification. It brings together 17 years of involvement in setup, operation and support of ceramic chip capacitor facility, as well as provider of the technical and operational support to Ceramic Co-fire packaging facilities. Epoch through it’s subsidiary, has been directly involved in providing sales, installation and technical support for PTC equipment for the past 10 years. Therefore we see ourselves in a great position to advance PTC in the manufacturing of its various equipment from both a process and user point-of-view”.

This acquisition will bring together the existing and new Epoch and PTC teams, riding on the backs of a skilled process-oriented staff and strong management to ensure the present line of equipment will continue to improve and exceed the advanced technological needs of its customers.

Epoch’ other subsidiaries includes a wholly owned electronic contract-manufacturing facility located in the bonded area of Dalian PR China, which services global customers in telecommunications, medical, automotive and computer related industries.

Epoch has moved PTC’s location from Carlsbad, California to Los Alamitos, California and intends to maintain the PTC operations from its Los Alamitos facility. This is a strategic move to ensure not only seamless transition but also better operational processes and costs reduction.

The purchase agreement was completed on August, 4 2005, which was signed by Foad Ghalili and Heather Zabloutny, President of PTC.
